AN EXPERT IN DAIRYING.

Is Now Working in Vermont and Forming Association.

The Vermont State Board of Agriculture has engaged Mr. Helmar Rabild, expert in dairying, of the United States department of agriculture to spend a few weeks in Vermont in the matter of organizing cow test associations. He spent the week of October 19-24 in Lamoille county. Five hundred cows are pledged in the vicinity of Morrisville and the organization meeting occurs on Tuesday evening, October 27, at that place. Nearly half that number were pledged on Thursday in Stowe and doubtless by this time sufficient number will be pledged to form an association in Stowe.

Mr. Rabild goes to a point near White River Junction this next week to form another organization. The merit of the cow testing proposition has been thoroughly discussed in the public press and elsewhere during the last two or three years and this active campaign ought to result in the establishment of several of these organizations in various sections of the state.

Parties that are interested in this matter should at once write to Prof.
R. L. Hills, Morrill hall, Burlington, Vt., and if there comes likelihood that an organization will result, Mr. Rabild will be sent into their communities.

STATE THINKS CASE STRONGER.

Second Trial of Whitmore For Wife

Murder.

New York, Oct. 27.—The second trial of Theodore Whitmore, Brooklyn motion, on a charge of murdering his wife and throwing her body into Lamplack swamp on Christmas eve

last year, was begun in Jersey City yesterday. Supreme Court Justice

Swayze presided and with him on the bench was Judge Blair of the court of common pleas.

The prisoner appeared to be in good physical condition and showed no signs of nervousness.

On the first trial the jury disagreed,

but this time the state thinks its case

is stronger.

Mrs. Letitia Carroll, who was arrested in Brooklyn recently is expected to testify that she saw Whitmore with his wife leave their home together the night before her death, and that he returned alone the following day. The prosecution contends that Whitmore was infatuated with Georgia Dickinson and that this furnished the motive for the crime. Whitmore declares that he did not see his wife on the night of the murder.

When the jury had been sworn, Assistant Prosecutor Garven opened the case for the state. Mr. Garven said the prosecution would have to depend entirely upon circumstantial evidence.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional cure. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken inter-ally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous membranes, and so doing, cures the disease at its source, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and so doing, cures the disease at its source. Proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of

PREFERRED DEATH BY SEA RATHER THAN BY GUN

Captain and Mate Begged For Life But Finally Jumped Overboard to Escape Wrath of Pirates.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 27.—Having for his mission the prosecution of a pair of pirates who sailed the South seas in a stolen vessel until they piled her up on a reef, G. G. Alexander, acting attorney general for the Fiji Islands, has arrived here en route for Callao, Peru, to secure evidence necessary to the trial.

Mr. Alexander brought the first authentic news of the capture and the names of the prisoners, who are now in jail at Suva.

"J. Mortelmans, a Belgian, and T. Skerret, a boy, are the men in custody," he said, "and in addition to being held for the piracy of the schooner Nevre Tigre, they must answer to the charge of murder of the captain and the mate.

The schooner sailed from Callao last November, with a crew of four. According to a statement made by Skerret, when the schooner was a day or two out from Callao, Mortelmans attacked the two men with a meat chopper. They clung into the rigging. Mortelmans brought a gun from his cabin and shouted to them, it is charged, that if they did not jump overboard he would shoot them. Both men begged, but finally both jumped.

The schooner was too far away from shore for them to have a chance of reaching land.

"Mortelmans and Skerret then started for the western Pacific. The name 'Whose Rose' was substituted. For two or three months they drifted across the Pacific, finally bringing up in the Gilbert Orellis group, where the schooner went ashore on a reef, where she now lies, high and dry. Traders who talked with Mortelmans and Skerret became suspicious and the police were informed.

Parties that are interested in this matter should at once write to Prof. R. L. Hills, Morrill hall, Burlington, Vt., and if there comes likelihood that an organization will result, Mr. Rabild will be sent into their communities.

HOW DO FOREST FIRES START?

Question Answered in a Conclusive Way by the Forest Service.

What starts these forest fires? This question has been asked over and over again this summer by readers of the accounts of the destructive fires which have been raging in all parts of the country.

Campers and locomotives, is the usual answer. Many of the other things which start blazes in the forest are forgotten. It is true that perhaps one-half to three-fourths of the forest fires do begin as a result of the carelessness of some camper, or from sparks flying from locomotives, but there are a number of things which set the woods afire.

A complete report of forest fires on the private forests of the country and their causes is not kept by anyone. Uncle Sam, however, is most careful to account for the damage done by the blazes on his timberland under forest administration, aggregating to about 168,000,000 acres, and each year the total area burned over, the timberland burned over, and its value, the cost of fighting fires, and the causes of fires are carefully checked up. These reports are made at the end of the year, and the announcement of this year's losses will therefore not be known for more than two months.

This year's figures, however, give a good idea of the things which cause fires in forests. Of the 1,385 fires discovered on the national forests last year, all of which were checked by the rangers before they had burned over fourteen hundredths of one per cent (14-100 of 1 per cent.) of the national forest area, campers caused 346, while railroad locomotives followed next with 273, lighting camp fires, next with 176; donkey engines used in lumbering operations, fourth, with 65; careless brush burning by homesteaders clearing land, 34; fires caused by incendiaries and those set by herders and hunters, 30. For more than 400 of the fires the cause is not known. This is not strange when it is remembered that a fire may smolder for days, if the air is too thick to permit the smoke to be seen at a distance, before it breaks out when fanned by a wind so as to reveal its presence to the watchful forest officer.

While campers caused more fires than locomotives last year, there are many seasons when the railroads have been reported claim to first place. Forest fires started by both are mostly unnecessary. If campers would exercise care in starting camp fires and be sure that they are extinguished before they are left, and if the railroad companies would use the most modern and efficient spark arresters, it is reasonable to think that the annual forest fire loss could be reduced more than one-half. Lightning ranks third among the causes of fires, and of course, man has no greater responsibility in this case than to put the fire out as soon as possible after its discovery. Careless brush burning by homesteaders and persons clearing land is said to be the cause of many of the fires which have started this year, particularly those which have swept over the lake states.

The ranger force on many of the national forests has been kept busy fighting fires since last year, there are many would have done incalculable damage. By quickening communication between important points through the construction of telephone lines, and building roads and trails, the national forests have been made more accessible during the past two years and fire fighting has been greatly facilitated.

HOME RECIPE EASILY MIXED

Relieves Worst Forms of Rheumatism Like Magic

TO BE TAKEN AFTER MEALS

Acts Promptly on The Kidneys and Bladder and Should Be Given a Trial by All Sufferers—Valuable Prescription.

Cut this out and put it in some safe place, for it is valuable and worth more than anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever.

The prescription is simple and can be made up by anyone at home. The ingredients can be had at any good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottle.

Here it is: Fluid extract of dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. A few doses is said to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and swelling, weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It gives them life and power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, relieving the worst forms of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion. Compound sarsaparilla cleans and enriches the blood. There is nothing better than Kargon compound for the kidneys.

This prescription is safe to use at any time.

As you watch them at work on the girders, clinging to massive steel columns, perched on the tops of columns, or leaning out over the street far below, it is not the recklessness, but the cool, steady nerve that you notice most. Under all the apparent unconcern you can feel the endless strain. It shows in the looks of their eyes, in the lines of their faces, in the pulsing, sudden motions, in the slow, set-like movements. Endlessly facing death, they are quiet and cool by long training.

On the "Metropolitan Life," some twenty-five tiers above the street, an enormous circle of stone was being built in as a frame for the clock. A dozen men were at work on the scaffold that hung outside, and projecting from overhead was the boom of the derrick that hoisted the massive stone blocks. Suddenly the cable caught, and the full power from the engine below was brought to bear on the derrick. All this in an instant, but in that instant somebody saw what was going to happen. With a quick, warning cry he made a leap from the planks to the solid steel beams of the building. There was a rending and tearing above, and just as the last man leaped in to safety, the derrick crashed down, bearing with it the scaffold and part of the stone. One empty, breathless moment, then a roar from far below, and a cloud of gray dust came drifting upward to the group of tiny men still clinging to the girders. For a moment longer nobody moved. Then some one broke the spell with a husky laugh, another gave an explosive halo—and the gang set about repairing the damage.—Ernest Poole, in the November Everybody's.

A Healthy Family.

"Our whole family has enjoyed good health since we began using Dr. King's New Life Pills, three years ago," says L. A. Bartlett of rural route 1, Guilford, Maine. They cleanse and tone the system in a gentle way that does you good. 25c at Red Cross Pharmacy, Rickett & Wells' drug store.

ABOUT THE STATE

Melvin Wadsworth, an inmate of the Civil Odd Fellow home, Ludlow, celebrated his ninety-fifth birthday anniversary October 22. He is still in good health and is said to be the oldest Odd Fellow in the state.

Water in Lake Memphremagog is probably lower than ever before, at least for a very long time. At several points, particularly on South Bay, Newport, the sewers which ordinarily discharge into the water are running some distance on the dry land.

The water in the Essex Junction village reservoir is said to be Friday morning about 100,000 gallons had been used at the five Thursday night and it was found to be six inches higher than about a month ago. The supply has been ample all summer.

Thomas J. Lalor, one of the proprietors of the Barndwell house at Rutland had an exciting experience this week fighting off work in Chittenden. He was hunting when he ran across a gang of men fighting forest fires and they insisted that he help dig a trench across the path of the flames. Mr. Lalor protested that he was not a resident of that town but the farmers declared that that did not make a difference.

He finally escaped on the plea that his health would not permit his wielding so heavy an implement as a shovel, being hardly able to carry his shotgun.

A letter received by a Burlington friend from Gen. Edward H. Ripley, written at Tokyo, Japan, September 25, bears the news that with Mrs. Ripley and the Misses Ripley he expects soon to begin the homeward trip. They had decided to return via Shanghai, Hankow, and Peking in order to see a little of China, then to Port Arthur and Manchuria to Harbin, and on to Paris by the Siberian route, by the severity of the cholera in China and Russia led them to change their plans and go by Singapore, Barmah, India, Suez, to Marseilles, Paris and London, arriving home about the 20th of December. General Ripley writes that so far their trip has been a great success, without the extreme heat which has been experienced here, and they have kept in the best of health. The country and people are more interesting than any they had ever seen.
